Early Years Policy

This policy aims to ensure:

- That children access a broad and balanced curriculum that gives them the broad range of knowledge and skills needed for good progress through school and life
- Quality and consistency in teaching and learning so that every child makes good progress and no child gets left behind
- Close partnership working between practitioners and with parents and/or carers
- Every child is included and supported through equality of opportunity and anti-discriminatory practice

At Stephen Freeman Primary School, the Early Years comprises a Reception unit with two Reception classes and a Nursery class that offers thirty hour places and part-time morning or afternoon sessions.

Our early years setting follows the curriculum as outlined in the latest version of the EYFS statutory framework that applies from November 2024.

The EYFS framework includes seven areas of learning and development that are equally important and inter-connected. However, three areas known as the prime areas particularly important for igniting curiosity and enthusiasm for learning, and for building children's capacity to learn, form relationships and thrive.

The prime areas are:

- Communication and language
- Physical development
- Personal, social and emotional development

The prime areas are strengthened and applied through four specific areas:

- Literacy
- Mathematics
- Understanding the world
- Expressive arts and design

Staff take into account the individual needs, interests and stage of development of each child in the setting, and use this information to plan challenging and engaging learning experiences that enable children to develop and learn effectively. In planning and guiding children's activities, practitioners reflect on the different ways that children learn and include these in their practice.

Children learn through planned purposeful play and a mix of adult-led and child-initiated activities. The environment is also planned to enable independent learning and sustained playing and learning. Continuous provision both inside and outside allows the children to develop in a safe yet challenges their learning. Practitioners respond to each child's emerging needs and interests, guiding their development through purposeful and positive interactions.

Ongoing assessment is an integral part of the learning and development process. Staff observe pupils to identify their level of achievement, interests and learning styles. These observations are used to shape future planning. Practitioners also take into account observations shared by parents and/or carers.

We recognise that children learn and develop well when there is a strong partnership between practitioners and parents and/or carers. Parents and/or carers are updated regularly about their child's progress and development through Class Dojo portfolio and Class story. In line with the whole school there are also parent consultations. In Nursery, each child is assigned a key person who ensures that their key children's learning and care is tailored to meet their needs. In Reception, the key person is the class teacher. The key person supports parents and/or carers in guiding their child's development at home. The key person also helps families to engage with more specialist support, if appropriate.

Where a child may have a special educational need or disability, staff consider whether specialist support is required, linking with relevant services from other agencies, where appropriate.

At the end of the EYFS (Reception), staff complete the EYFS profile for each child. The EYFS profile helps to provide parents and/or carers with a well-rounded picture of their child's knowledge, understanding and abilities. Pupils are assessed against the 17 early learning goals, indicating whether they have:

- Meet expected levels of development
- Not yet reaching expected levels ('emerging')

The results of the profile are then shared with parents and/or carers and Year 1 teachers.

Our Early Years Unit is a part of the Stephen Freeman Primary School and is covered by whole school policies. Our safeguarding and welfare procedures are outlined in our safeguarding policy.
